

International Workshop: “Post-mobile Society”

Organized by the Chair of Sociology of Technology and Innovation, TU Berlin

Date: February 28th 2019
Venue: Technische Universität Berlin
Department of Sociology
Fraunhoferstraße 33-36 10587 Berlin
Room: FH 804

The workshop brings together two Japanese research projects and one German research project, each dealing with consequences and challenges of “post-mobile societies” (Tomita 2016). Each project presents its own research in 30 minutes. The participants will discuss how sociological methods of field research might be used to advance participatory technology design. After each presentation, there will be 30 minutes for discussion and questions about the projects. The final discussion serves to explore future opportunities for cooperation and joint research activities. Guests are welcome and invited to participate in the discussion.

16:00-17:00 Tomoyuqui OKADA (Kansai University, Osaka):

Practice of Participatory Design of Mobile Media for Problem-solving in Local Communities

17:00-18:00 Ito KOTA (Hakuhodo Inc., Tokyo):

Media Mobilization and the Bricolage of Time and Place

18:00-18:30 Coffee Break

18:30-19:30 Eric LETTKEMANN & Ingo SCHULZ-SCHAEFFER (TU Berlin):

Locative Media and Accessibilities to Urban Public Places

19:30-20:00 Concluding Discussion

Discussant: Keita MATSUSHITA (Jissen Women’s University, Tokyo)

20:30 Dinner (Brauhaus Georgbraeu, Spreeufer 4, 10178 Berlin)